Harrington Joins an Empire State Provider

Bruce Harrington is back, taking over strategic planning for a provider.

Today Harrington joined Pentegra as vice president of strategic development, a newly created role. Boston-based Harrington now reports to executive vice president Matt Mintzer at the White Plains, New York-based firm.

"He knows the organization really well," Mintzer tells 401kWire.

Watch for Harrington to take Pentegra's fiduciary work and expand it "beyond [Pentegra's] current footprint, Mintzer says. More specifically, Harrington says that he'll working on "expanding the 3(16) offerings and looking to develop partnerships in order to do that." Pooled employer plans (PEPs) will also be a key focus, Harrington adds.

Harrington's resume includes: a global wealth management and retirement role at North Highland; multiple leadership roles at John Hancock Financial Network; a head of retirement role at LPL; a leadership role at Cogent Research; and product development and marketing roles at MFS and Putnam. He is an alumnus of Suffolk University's Sawyer School of Management and of Boston College.
